Dorothy Ramon Learning Center's nonprofit publishing arm, Ushkana Press, is pleased to announce its newest book. This landmark work by Richard A. Hanks, PhD, tells the mostly untold stories of Southern California's own Native American heroes as they waged battle in tumultuous times to secure their Southern California homelands, natural resources, and respect. Historical photos, and the voices of Southern California Native American Elders help tell this history that's been missing from the history books — until now.

This War is For A Whole Life: The Culture of Resistance Among Southern California Indians, 1850-1966.
