Winter storms are great for our parched Southern California landscapes. They allow you to turn off your sprinklers and save water, and they help provide the rain and snow in local foothills that contribute to replenishing our groundwater supplies.

However, it is important to remember that California's drought is not over. A few rainstorms are not enough to fix record setting drought conditions that have plagued our great state.

RPU reminds all of our water customers throughout Riverside to continue to do your part this year and save water and conserve. For tips on conserving and information on all of our water saving rebate programs visit BlueRiverside.com.
