What is WaterWise landscaping?

"Waterwise" Landscaping refers to the eco-friendly way of choosing drought tolerant plants that are used in drier climates and able to survive long periods without water.

Waterwise plants need little and sometimes no water, once the plants are established. Many nurseries now carry native or California Friendly™ plants, which are resistant to drought and can rely on rainfall most of the year for their watering needs.

When you save water, you save money. By planting native or California Friendly™ plants and using efficient irrigation, you can cut your outdoor water use by up to 50% while still growing a pleasant and enjoyable garden.

The Kathleen M. Gonzales Waterwise Garden has been designed to illustrate the beauty of waterwise landscaping, the plants were selected for their contrast in colors, textures and shapes. Upon viewing the garden it will become evident that water efficient landscaping techniques can produce a luxurious and abundant landscape.
